After 15 years of work in the nationalised gas industry interrupted by 2 years National Service in the army, I trained and qualified at the National College as a Youth and Community Worker. Three and a half years of club-based work in Battersea (1964-1967) were followed by five and a half years of Detached Work in Bromley, Kent (1967 to 1973). During this time I received counselling training from the London Marriage Guidance Council, Westminster Pastoral Foundation, Centre for Therapeutic Communications (Reality Therapy), and Ealing Child Guidance Clinic. There followed ten years of lecturing in Socialwork, Nursing & Education at Ipswich, where I taught mainly counselling, groupwork and community work until 1973. Since then I have worked as a freelance counsellor, supervisor, trainer, and continued as a part time tutor in Counselling. Meanwhile I gained a Cambridge Diploma in Counselling and Groupwork, followed by Certification in Reality Therapy and now, through Practicum Supervisor, to Instructor. I work with all ages from adolescents upward, including ex-service personnel, the retired, those with mental health challenges, relationship and family difficulties etc. I supervise counsellors and other workers.
